END OF FLIGHT—The wreckage of the jet plane and, in this picture of the scene after firemen had extinguished home at 4042 East Dakota Avenue seem inextricably mixed most of the blaze in house and trees.

LAST LANDING—Smoke pours from the wreckage of the plane and the house it set on fire. In an explosion and crash on takeoff, the body of the pilot, Second Lieutenant Donn Austin is covered with a blanket. He was killed instantly.

TO SAVE CLUES—An unidentified sergeant of the air National Guard stands near the wreckage of the tail section to protect it against souvenir seekers and preserve for investigators any clues to the cause of the Sunday afternoon crash.

SPECTATORS—This is part of the crowd which hampered firemen in their fight against the plane caused flames. The curious disregarded exploding machine gun bullets from the plane's ammunition boxes.

Townsend Is Mum On Story Princess Is Unattainable

LONDON — AP — Group Captain Peter Townsend, whose name has been linked romantically with Princess Margaret's, flew back to London today for the annual conference of British air attaches.

Townsend is the air attaché in Brussels, a post to which he was suddenly assigned after reports he and the princess were romancing began to appear in the newspapers. He had been a member of the royal family's staff.

The slim, handsome flier said he will be back in Brussels at the end of the week.

Asked to comment on a newspaper story, Townsend, a 40-year-old divorced father of two children, said:

"I haven't read it. I never do." Yesterday the newspaper, The People, said it had received reports from circles close to the royal household the Princess Margaret-Townsend romance was off.

Townsend was told some weeks ago, the newspaper said in a front page story, "according to this authoritative report, that any expectations he may have entertained about marrying the princess cannot be fulfilled."

State Bar Opens SF Parley; Weeds Out Proposals

SAN FRANCISCO — AP — The state bar opened its annual meeting today with some 100 members already out of the way. The resolutions committee weeded out several proposals, among them several controversial resolutions which were judged matters of "public policy" and therefore not fit subject for conference action. Included were proposals on federal loyalty and security cases, employment discrimination and repeal of the mandatory death penalty for assault by a convict on a guard. The committee discarded a resolution calling for a study of the death penalty because the legislature committee is making such a study. A proposal to create a state study committee was rejected. The committee also shelved the controversy over the rule of "contributory negligence." Under this rule a person may collect no damages as a result of accidents for which he was even partly to blame.

No Chickens

HOBBS, NM — AP — When Jack Johnson reported chicken thieves had raided his hen house, an officer was assigned to investigate. His report read: "Found feathers. Unable to locate any chickens to go with same."

3,000 Hear Mormons

BERN, Switzerland — AP — A capacity audience of more than 3,000 last night heard the concert of the Mormon Tabernacle choir from Salt Lake City, Utah. Festival Hall, a modern wood structure normally used for exhibitions and sports, vibrated with applause for the 379 singers and their conductor, Richard P. Condie.
